

MANAGEMENT (MGT)

MGT 171 - Supervision Units: 3

Supervision and Human Relations provides a skill-building approach to the successful transition from employee to first-level manager, beginning with the interpersonal skills needed to be a competent and cooperative contributor in a group environment through a better understanding of self and others. The course then examines concepts and provides practice in the application of supervisory abilities such as goal-setting, staffing, decision making, communicating, appraising performance, and managing conflict. In addition, compliance issues such as EEO, and workplace health and safety, will be addressed. Central to the course is better understanding of one's self as a supervisor, and exploring some of the more effective ways of relating to others.

Term Offered: Spring and Fall

MGT 201 - Principles of Management Units: 3

Fundamentals and principles of management; administrative policies, objectives, procedures, problems of organization control and leadership.

Term Offered: Spring and Fall

MGT 212 - Leadership and Human Relations Units: 3

The focus of the course is on understanding leader and follower behavior in organizations, in terms of both theory and practice. Central to the course is better understanding oneself as a leader and exploring some of the more effective ways of leading others. Some of the most challenging decisions facing future leaders will be those that involve values and morality. As such, the course includes ideas and concepts that will help future leaders incorporate a consideration of ethics into their own leadership approach.

Term Offered: Spring and Fall
